Specialists in a variety of Waterproofing Systems

Waterproofing is not a 'one size fits all' solution. There are a plethora of different products and systems available to waterproofing designers, each with their own strengths and weaknesses.

Protectahome are capable of designing a variety of bespoke systems to suit many projects or types of construction. The earlier that we are involved in the design process the better, to ensure that the waterproofing is coherent with the wider construction design.

As an independent contractor, we hold no obligation or bias toward any particular system or manufacturer and therefore have the freedom to choose the most suitable product systems for each project.

All our designs and installations are fully compliant with BS8102:2009. The British Standard code of practice for the protection of underground structures against water from the ground.
